As you are already aware Whatman Asia Pacific Pte Ltd aligned to and became a part of GE Healthcare, more specifically its Life Sciences business. The integration of Whatman's broad product offering of filters and membranes for laboratory, research, life sciences and medical technology applications into the product portfolio of GE Healthcare has served to create a center of excellence that offers a wide range of solutions for the life science community.

For your further information, Life Sciences business in India merged into Wipro GE Healthcare effective April 1, 2010. Accordingly, the Life Sciences business is now a part of Wipro GE Healthcare and will operate under the legal entity Wipro GE Healthcare Pvt. Ltd. Consequently, the Whatman business also stand aligned to Wipro GE Healthcare Pvt. Ltd. effective April 1, 2010.

Any further clarification pertaining to the above matter may be directed to the Wipro GE Healthcare Private Limited.

To whom it may concern.

903 Protein Saver cards are GE's proprietary product for which GE has full ownership. These are Ready-to-use cards and kits that save time and costs during sample collection, transport, and archiving, without the need for costly freezers or dry ice delivery.

GE Healthcare's Whatman 903 Protein Saver Cards are manufactured in accordance with ISO9001, with strict quality control to ensure homogenous composition as well as flow rate, absorbency, and purity.

With regards to this technology, GE Lifesciences assures the following:

Whatman 903 Sample Collection Cards are designed for the collection of biological fluids. Choose our five-spot Protein Saver card or our four-spot Protein Saver Snap-Apart card, or choose custom printing for specific applications.

Customized options include barcodes, scan able formats using optical character recognition (OCR), carbonless copies, and more.

Protein Saver cards are currently being used in the Longitudinal Ageing Study in India (LASI) project.

Should you have any further questions please contact me.
